Course description

Studying the elements of classical composition is akin to learning an instrument: while understanding theoretical concepts is important, the crucial task is to practice their application, hands-on and systematically.

This class is extremely labor-intensive. The students will explore ways to mold their own musical language and ideas through composition exercises, analysis of repertoire, study of music theory, and improvisation. Learning correct notation, production of performance materials, and working with performers will also be important aspects of the course.

There is no final examination for this course. As the final project, the students' chamber music compositions will be performed in a public concert by a hired ensemble of professional musicians, supplemented in some cases by student performers. A preliminary composition exercise is also due in lieu of a midterm examination, and will be performed in class.

Intended learning outcomes

On successful completion of the course, you will have

- developed your overall creative thinking;
- gained the ability to express yourself through writing music;
- a deeper appreciation and understanding of music, regardless of style;
- stronger musicianship skills; and
- a wider and practical understanding of music theory.

Prerequisites

While you do not need to have extensive musical background to sign up for the course, you should have basic music reading skills (such as acquired in HUMA 2104) and the ability to play an instrument. We will conduct an advisory placement exam during the first class session.

Course requirements

1. Most of what you learn will be assimilated in class—attendance, therefore, is crucial. In tutorials, we go through students' work together. These sessions are as important as the lectures. Towards the end of the semester, tutorials will be replaced with one-on-one composition lessons. You are expected to participate in every class session, tutorial, and one-on-one meeting. Be on time: twice late will count as once absent.² You must also participate in the final concert and be in charge of the rehearsals of your own work.

3. Midterm project: composition of a duet or solo work, with a duration of at least one minute. Depending on the nature of your project, this can also be the first draft of your final composition project; this will be decided on a case-by-case basis.

4. Final project: a work for two or more players, duration at least two minutes.

5. We will hire professional performers for the final concert. However, if you need additional players, both your plan and the outside player(s) need to be pre-approved. Take this into consideration when deciding what instruments to write for. If you are an experienced performer yourself, you are encouraged (but not obligated) to play in your own work.

6. For the midterm composition, we will not have a hired ensemble. We will help you find players by providing names and contact information of musicians who have volunteered to participate in the past—ultimately, making sure you have the players for your piece and scheduling rehearsals will be your responsibility.

Term paper and concert

Your term paper will be an analytical writing assignment, based on music you hear at the events. The length is a minimum 350 words, which works out to around 1.5 pages in Times New Roman 12-point font, double spaced. More details will be given in class. You will also be provided a link to a video of the concert to assist with writing the paper (assuming MTPC will edit and publish it in due course). Concert schedule will be announced at a later date.
