Course Description:

This undergraduate-level course is a survey of Chinese cinema through the lens of feminist film criticism. It examines Chinese women as both real-life and fictional figures to unravel the convoluted relationship between history and cinematic representations. Organized chronologically, this course begins with modern girls and new women in Republican China and concludes with contemporary female immigrants in the age of globalization. The changing images of women on screen go hand in hand with major cinematic movements in history, from the left-wing cinema movement in the 1930s to post-1989 underground/independent filmmaking. Throughout the course, approaches of film analysis and gender/sexuality theories will be covered. English is used for all reading materials, lectures, classroom discussions, papers, and tests.

Course Objectives:

By the end of this semester students should be able to:

- summarize major cinematic movements in Chinese film history
- be familiar with the main ideas of feminist film theories
- track the changing images of women on and off screen (women as representations on film and women as real people in socio-historical context)

- explore the nuanced relationship between women on and off screen
- sharpen critical thinking and analyze women on screen informed by gender/sexuality theories
- analyze films with a professional film vocabulary
- enhance academic writing skills in film and gender/sexuality studies
- cultivate humanitarian values and develop a strong sense of social responsibility

Classroom Etiquette

- Attendance is mandatory. It is your responsibility to sign up and track your attendance. If you forget to sign up an attendance, your TA will not make up for it. If you need to miss a class for a legitimate reason, please inform your TA at least three days in advance and present relevant documents to your TA within one week after the absence. Being 5 minutes late for class three times will be counted as one unexcused absence. One unexcused absence means 5 points off your final total score. Four or more unexcused absences will automatically lower your final grade to F.
- No Make-up Projects are allowed. The instructor will grant a make-up project only for absolute necessities (e.g., medical reason, family crisis) and not because you have too much work and have run out of time. Please inform your TA in advance if you believe you have a legitimate reason for a make-up project. You are expected to present convincing documents to your TA. The make-up project will be completely different and will be more difficult, and it will be graded more strictly.
- No Late Submission will be accepted. Please be on time.
- Preparation: You are expected to be well prepared before each class begins. Please read related course materials and watch the required films of the week before you come to class. In this way, you can make the most of classroom discussions.
- Electronic Devices: Please turn off your cell phones in class. Laptops, iPad, and other electronic devices are allowed only for taking notes in class. Please do not use them to check emails and browse irrelevant websites. If a student is found violating the rules, it means 5 points off his/her final score.
- Notification in Advance: Always inform the instructor at least three days in advance for absence and other issues that need special attention and accommodation.
- Religious Holiday Accommodation: If you wish to claim accommodation for a religious holiday, you should talk to your instructor within the first two weeks of the semester. You need to provide supporting documents.
- Learning Disability Accommodation: If you wish to claim accommodation for any kind of learning disability, you should talk to your instructor within the first two weeks of the semester. Please provide supporting documents.
- Academic Integrity: Any academic dishonesty of any kind will be officially processed in accordance with the policies of the university.
